

USG System Council on International Education Bylaws

Article I. Purpose and Function

The System Council on International Education (SCIE) supports the international education mission of the University System of Georgia (USG) by advocating for best practices in program design and management, in faculty and staff development, and in student support. The SCIE also provides guidance on the strategic use of resources and supports system-wide collaborative negotiations, all in order to promote both breadth and quality in international activities throughout the USG.

The goals of the SCIE are:

- To ensure that all USG schools provide opportunities for students to attain an appropriate level of international skills, knowledge and understanding that enables them to succeed in a global society

- To provide professional development opportunities for faculty and staff that strengthen international education at USG institutions through high impact practices, such as study abroad

- To encourage collaboration among those working with international students so as to strengthen institutional internationalization efforts

- To support the commitment, set out in the USG strategic plan, to increase international education opportunities through student and faculty exchanges and to ensure that all USG students graduate as active and aware participants in a global economy and society

The SCIE aims to provide a forum for discussion, for development of collaborative programs and for the exchange of information about elements of best practices in international education across USG institutions.

SCIE is a regional advisory committee of the University System of Georgia. Voting members serve important roles as SCIE Campus Coordinators for their institutions, and all members, both voting and non-voting, play an important role in shaping the direction of international education in the USG.

Article II: Membership

Participation in SCIE meetings is open to all USG faculty and staff with an interest in international education. Each USG institution will have one voting member to be appointed by the institution's Chief Academic Officer (or his/her designee). Each voting member should be the institution's primary point of contact to be informed on all current and developing international initiatives at his/her institution and in the University System of Georgia. Voting members should consult with other SCIE participants from their campuses for feedback on voting issues. Membership will also include, as an ex-officio (non-voting) member and liaison from the University System Office (USO), the USG Director of International Education or the designee of the Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs.

Article III. Executive Committee

The Executive Committee shall be composed of the SCIE Chair, the SCIE Vice-Chair and seven Standing Members: the Chairs of the two Committees (Study Abroad, International Students and Scholars) and the Chairs of the five Regional Councils (Africa, Americas, Asia, European, and Middle East). The USG Director of International Education will serve as an ex-officio member. The Executive Committee Members should include one representative from each of the institutional categories within the USG, to include one from a research university, one from comprehensive university, one from a state university and one from a state college. Both voting and non-voting members of the SCIE may serve on the Executive Committee; members of the Executive Committee may not vote once issues for decision come to the full SCIE, unless they are also the designated voting member from their campus.
